

MELVILLE KELLY LAID TO REST TO-DAY

Few seats in the huge auditorium of St. Columba church were vacant this morning when funeral services were held for the late Melville Kelly, the eighteen years' old youth who was overcome by motor gas Monday evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Kelly. Evidence of the young man's popularity was impressively given by the number of people who were anxious to pay their last respects to his memory.

Dean John F. Quinn told eloquently of the splendid character with which Melville had been blessed. A boy of exemplary habits; faithful to his religious teachings; obedient, industrious, ambitious, courteous—he was, to quote Dean Quinn, a splendid example to other young men." In touching upon Melville's character, the Dean paid a remarkable tribute to the parents whose training and home life had so wonderfully assisted in making the son what he was.

The pall bearers were Edmund Meagher, George Golden, George Lee, Arthur and Richard Halligan.
